Port mulls asphalt/ concrete plant at Industrial Boulevard

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A Bay Area company hopes to lease six acres at the Port of Sacramento to build a facility that ships aggregate and makes asphalt and concrete. The plant is a "permitted use" according to city zoning rules, but may get more scrutiny from both the port commission and the West Sacramento public before it is approved.

The plant would be located on the south side of Industrial Blvd. near Terminal St. The property is roughly across the street from the Farmers Rice Cooperative facility.

"Our principle interest is in the maritime business this would produce," said Port Director John Sulpizio yesterday. "But we're not insensitive to the issues of screening and smell and so forth. The port commission has asked them for a plot plan and sight lines."

Sulpizio told the News-Ledger that the project is proposed by Pacific Cement, "a family-owned company from the Bay Area."

"The first phase of the development would include a concrete-batching plant, and a later phase would include an asphalt-batching plant," said Sulpizio. In conjunction with the manufacturing facilities, the company would move stone from the port to the Bay Area, and return with sand for the manufacturing facility.

Latest postal anthrax scare a hoax

MEMBERS OF WEST SACRAMENTO FIRE DEPARTMENT'S hazardous materials unit suit up in protective clothing in front of the regional U.S. Postal Service distribution center on Industrial Blvd. on Nov. 14; among those helping is the department's hazardous materials manager, Bill Summers (with sunglasses). The local firefighters supported county health department workers who investigated an anthrax threat at the facility. The threat was an apparent hoax.

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A threatening letter containing a powdery substance and a reference to anthrax turned out to be a hoax. But it tied up a number of local emergency services personnel and shut down administrative offices at the postal sorting center on Industrial Blvd. last for several hours last Wednesday.

Division Chief Gary Rios of the West Sacramento Fire Department said that an engine from the city's Harbor Blvd. station responded to a call at the U.S. Postal Service facility at about 8 a.m.

"At that time, it was stated that an employee in the administrative portion of the facility had received a letter with a white powdery substance and a threat, including the word 'anthrax,'" said Rios. "The air system for those offices was shut down, the place was evacuated, and the employees were washed up. Yolo County Environmental Health was called to the scene."

While work continued at the adjacent mail sorting center, the county environmental health personnel suited up and entered the building to investigate the letter. West Sacramento's hazardous materials team from the 15th St. station backed them up, said Rios, helping to decontaminate the health department personnel when they exited the building.

The powdery substance was then field tested by the West Sacramento Fire Department.

"They determined it was a boron-type material that wasn't a hazardous material," said Rios. That determination was later confirmed by the Sacramento County Public Health Laboratory, said Dr. Bette Hinton, Yolo's public health officer.

Affected offices reopened by 1:30 p.m. Postal inspectors and the FBI are both investigating the mail threat.

"What they are trying to get out is that this is really a serious crime, a hoax like that," Rios commented. "It ties up a lot of emergency resources. People doing that type of stuff should really consider the consequences."

County shows off plan for bigger, better local library branch

From the County of Yolo

A proposal to build a new and expanded county library in West Sacramento was recently unveiled at a meeting of the West Sacramento City Council.

"A state-of-the-art library represents more than just a collection of books," said Yolo County Supervisor Mike McGowan. "A library represents opportunity and enables us to celebrate our past while building on our future. It's time for West Sacramento to have a library that reflects our promise and potential as a community."

Describing the new facility as "a catalyst for unifying the community," County Librarian Mary Stephens outlined plans for the library, detailing the building's size, potential location, financing options, and value to the community.

The proposed 32,416 square foot library would be far larger than the current 8,419 square foot facility, and may be sited near the existing "City Center." It would be a "Resource Library," similar to the Davis library, and would have greater research and service capabilities than the current facility's "Community Library" status.

The anticipated collection size would be increased from the current 64,000 volumes level to 120,000 volumes, in addition to a strong audio visual/multi-media, other language collections, and a West Sacramento history component in the Reference Collection.

The number of public access computer stations would also increase from the current number of 12 to 52 terminals, including 12 designated for technology training. In addition, a proposed meeting/community room space would be designed to seat 125 people with an additional storytelling space for 35 children, and there would also be a homework center with seating for 24 students.

The facility is projected to cost $13.5 million, with revenues drawn from a variety of sources, including the county, State Library Bond Act monies, and a special tax that would have to be approved by West Sacramento voters.

The special tax measure is slated to be placed before the voters on the November 2002 ballot. If approved, construction of the new library would begin in May of 2004 and be completed by November of 2005.

'Guilty' plea in federal credit card fraud case

A West Sacramento man has pleaded guilty in federal court to one count of using an unauthorized device for his use of a credit card fraudulently obtained using the names of others.

Mark A. Jarvis, 46, is scheduled for sentencing on Jan. 29, said U.S. Attorney John K. Vincent's office. Assistant U.S. Attorney Norman Wong said Jarvis admitted applying for and receiving five credit cards using the names of his girlfriend and her ex-husband. He then used the cards for purchases.

The crime carries a sentence of up to ten years in prison, a fine of $250,000, and three years of supervised release.

The plea was made in the court of Judge Lawrence K. Karlton. The case resulted from an inspection by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service.

250-megawatt natural gas facility:

Power plant proceeds, but opposition looms

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A bid to build a power plant on private property along Southport Parkway in West Sacramento has fizzled. But plans for a larger natural gas-fired plant on Port of Sacramento land are moving ahead, say city and port officials.

The stalled proposal had been championed several months ago by the energy conglomerate Calpine, which hoped to build a 90-megawatt "peak hours" plant near the Crum & Crum warehouse on land owned by a partnership involving Frank Ramos and Marvin "Buzz" Oates.

"We haven't heard from them in awhile," said city planning director Stephen Patek, speaking about Calpine.

Still going forward is a separate, 250-275 megawatt facility planned for eight acres of Port property along Industrial Blvd. west of Harbor Blvd. That plant is put forward by Ameresco Energy Sources. This plant, too, would be a "peaker" – peak peak-hour only – power plant powered by natural gas. It would operate only when the region's electrical supply was being stretched near its limit. At least in the first phase, the plant would be a "single-stage" plant that does not use the cleanest-air technologies.

"We have requested that they run through our CUP (conditional use permit) process as a way to focus community discussion," said Patek. But the ultimate authority on such a project might be the California Energy Commission, whose approval of such a plant could trump any decision made by West Sacramento.

Port director John Sulpizio said the Port of Sacramento is not pushing the project hard, and not championing it without regard to the views of the city and community.

"We're not out front as outspoken champions of the project," he said. "Yes, the project will have economic merit because it involves the lease of ten acres, and there will be some revenue from that. And yes it will strengthen the power grid for West Sacramento and the area around it. But is not something essential to our central maritime mission."

The news of the proposed power plant may have helped create a new West Sacramento community group.

Residents including Southport homeowner Derek Backus circulated flyers urging community members to attend a meeting several weeks ago in opposition to the plant, and Backus said that about 50 of the people who attended that meeting signed up as members of the new group.

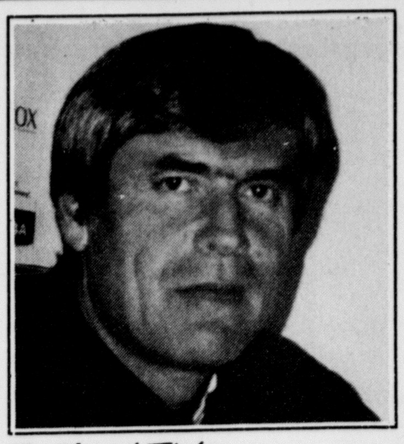
"I don't think it's a good idea for the community," said Backus yesterday. "For the pollution it will bring in, the immediate benefit to the community is about nil. It's mostly automated – we're talking about three to five permanent jobs. And even though it won't be run very often, it will be run on the worst air quality days because it will be needed when it's hot out and everybody is using their air conditioners. We'd get as much benefit as the rest of the state, but most of the problems would be local. And it's really debatable whether these 'peaker' plants are desirable or necessary."

Backus said he would be in favor of seeing the site be used for "light industrial uses – they're talking about business parks, and loading and unloading for the port, and I don't have a problem with that. But putting a smokestack next to residential areas is thinking from the 1940s."

Planning director Patek earlier told the News-Ledger that the Ameresco plant would include several exhaust stacks "well away from the road" and about 80 feet tall, as well as cooling equipment 30 feet tall.

If you live 'across the bridge,' do not read this column!

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

As many of you know, I have written columns in the past about our community's less-than-stellar reputation amongst those who reside on the other side of the Sacramento River.

"But I think that's all changing," an 'across-the-bridge' friend of mine recently informed me as we were eating lunch in a downtown Sacramento cafe. "Now that you have Raley Field and the River Cats, I think people from all over Sacramento are starting to look at West Sacramento in a more positive light, don't you?"

"What in the world are you talking about?" I asked my somewhat naive friend. "Most people from Sacramento are still scared to death to step foot in West Sacramento. And as for all those out-of-town baseball fans who go to the River Cat games, they can't wait to get their butts back across the river once the game ends and the fireworks are over. And I for one kinda like it that way."

"You know, Daryl, sometimes I think you actually like the fact that West Sacramento has such a bad reputation. I don't understand it. You're always telling me what a great place it is to live. Don't you want everyone else to know it, too?"

"Not particularity," I admitted.

"But why not?"

"Look," I tried to explain, lowering my voice so no one at any of the nearby tables could hear me, "it's kinda like having a favorite fishing hole. If you go around telling the whole darn world about it, before you know it, everyone and their mother is fishing in it and the place is never the same again."

"I don't know," said my friend, "but it seems to me that as a columnist for your hometown newspaper, you have a responsibility to tell people what a great place West Sacramento is every chance you get. I know you're always telling me!"

"I do not."

"Yes you do."

"No I don't! Well, okay, maybe I've told you a couple of nice things about West Sacramento, but I like to keep all of the really good stuff top secret. In fact, I bet you can't name more than one or two nice things I've ever told you about West Sacramento."

"Are you kidding? I can name dozens!"

"No way."

"For instance, the best deluxe tacos in the world are made at Whitey's Jolly Kone and the best steak sandwiches in the world are made at Club Pheasant, right?"

"Well, yes."

"And didn't you tell me that you have two wonderful old VFW Posts over there and that West Sacramento has more veterans who have honorably served their country than you can shake a stick at?"

"Well, yes."

"And didn't you once say that...."

As my Sacramento friend went on and on about all the good reasons for living in West Sacramento which I had apparently let slip across my tongue, I smiled and recalled some of the really great stuff I had still managed to keep a secret: Like the fact that there is simply not a more diverse town anywhere, with our well-established Hispanic, Italian, Russian, Sikh, Vietnamese, Laotian, Portuguese, and East Indian communities; that our neighborhoods and schools are much safer and far less drug-infested than most of their counterparts in the greater Sacramento area; that there is still a small town, even rural atmosphere to our community; that our small businesses are still frequented and appreciated by our citizenry; that our politicians are home grown and keenly aware that they are responsible to those who elected them; and that unlike South, East, and North Sacramento, we still have the opportunity (although sometimes it seems to be slipping through our fingers) to properly manage our future growth and become an even better city than we already are.

"Plus you've also told me that West Sacramento has the best Little League facilities in the area, a pyramid building which is better architecturally than anything the Sacramento skyline has to offer, and of course, that the News-Ledger is by far and away the best little weekly newspaper in the whole valley," continued my friend. "Shall I go on?"

"No, no, that's okay," I said, "but just remember, you have to keep it all to yourself, especially the part about the News-Ledger being the best weekly newspaper in the whole Sacramento valley."

"Why is that?"

"Well," I said, once again lowering my voice, "if the Sacramento Bee ever figures it out, they'll probably offer me $50,000 or even more to leave the News-Ledger and become one of their columnists, and bingo, there'll go my quiet, peaceful, idyllic life in West Sacramento."

"You know, Daryl," said my friend, also lowering his voice, "that is one of the things I've always liked about you."

"What's that?" I asked with interest.

"The fact that you have never really managed to acquire a very firm grip on reality."

"Baseball News"

The home run king is back in the news as major league baseball names Barry Bonds the league's Most Valuable Player. Baseball's biggest free agent was named the National League MVP for a history making fourth time in his illustrious career.

The 37-year-old outfielder passed some great ball players who have won the MVP award three times in their careers. These famous names include likes of Jimmie Foxx, Joe Dimaggio, Stan Musial, Roy Campanella, Yogi Berra, Mickey Mantle and Mike Schmidt.

Bonds won the MVP award in 1990 and 92 with Pirates and picked up his third trophy in 1993 with the Giants. Bonds went 8 years between MVP awards to pick up this year's bonus check for $100,000 from the Giants. Mr. Bonds started the season in 17th place among the all-time home run sluggers to climb into the 6th spot with 567. The big question in 2002 is where is Bonds going to finish out his career? How do you think Bonds would look in Yankees pinstripes?

"Kings Korner"

The Sacramento Kings (8-3) returned to the friendly confines of the Arco Arena after losing to the Lakers on Sunday night on to beat the Houston Rockets by 36 points on Monday. The Kings bounced back against the Rockets after blowing a lead in Los Angeles to lose 93-85 to the Shaq and Kobe show. The loss left the Kings in a bad mood as both team point to the next showdown between the two rivals in Sacramento on December 7th.

The Kings, who are undefeated at home (5-0), are one of only 4 teams who remain unbeaten on their home court. The other three teams are the Lakers (6-0), San Antonio (5-0), and the Toronto Raptors (3-0).

The Kings have an ugly road trip next week but this Thanksgiving week they have two tough games against good opponents. On Wednesday night (7 p.m.) they face Portland (6-5) and then on Saturday night (7 p.m.) the red-hot New Jersey Nets (7-2) invade the Arco Arena.

The Kings will then hit the road next week starting with a game in Memphis on Tuesday night followed by a back-to-back game against the recently embarrassed Houston Rockets on Wednesday (TBS-5 p.m.). It gets uglier for the Kings with only one day off before they travel deeper into Texas for another set of back-to-back games against Dallas on Thursday (5:30) and then the Spurs on Friday night (5:30 p.m-ch.31).

"NFL Action"

The Raiders (7-2) and the 49ers (7-2) continue their winning ways as the NFL teams head into the second half of the season with only 7 games remaining. The 49ers had to pull another rabbit out the hat to beat the Panthers 25-22 in overtime. The Niners have played in team record four overtime games this season. The Green Bay Packers own the record with five OT games in 1983.

Jeff Garcia continues his fourth quarter magic with his fourth come-from-behind win of the young season. Garcia hit Terrell Owen with seven-yard touchdown pass in the final seconds of the game but also needed another pass with no time remaining for the two-point conversion. The Niners won the coin toss and Garcia moved the team into a 26-yard field goal by Jose Cortez to win in overtime. This Sunday the 49ers (+ 2 ½) travel to Indianapolis (10 a.m.-FOX) to play the Colts.

The Raiders jumped all over the San Diego Chargers 34-24 to pad their AFC West lead to two games. Jerry Rice and Rich Gannon shared the stage again with another great performance. Rice caught 8 passes for 131 yards and three touchdowns. Gannon was masterful in leading the Raiders offense. Gannon completed 25 of 38 attempts for 311 yards and 4 touchdowns.

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

TOURING with TEDDI

King's Chinese American Restaurant on West Capitol Ave. between Jefferson and Westacre has been in business since 1960 at this location. During the 1970s and 1980s, I frequented this restaurant often, as well as Raley's Marina Inn and the El Rancho Hotel, both of which are no longer in operation. In my opinion, perhaps King's should have also closed while it was the reigning Chinese restaurant in this area.

Out of sentiment, I have been in King's five times recently trying to justify a good review, but in all honesty I cannot do it. Lunch last Monday was the last time I will patronize what once was a favorite eating place for me.

The unnamed soup had a slight taste of chicken and lots of noodles (very limpid). The fried rice tasted more like rancid overused oil than anything else. The pork chow mein with crispy noodles was edible, and the two appetizer shrimp were good. My companion ordered tea, which we never got.

Once the food came (soup and main course together), we didn't see our waitress again until we got the check. Having tried their Wah Wonton Soup Hong Kong style and their shrimp in lobster sauce many times before, I was surprised to find they now get $10.95 for the shrimp and $6.95 for the soup. Many of the customers must come in for the Dim Sum, which is served daily. As for me, I will not go to King's again.

Rumor has it you had better make your reservations for dinner on Friday or Saturday nights early at the Westside Pub & Grill. They're being stampeded by locals looking for a classy place for dinner.

Speaking of classy, don't forget to get over to Morrison's Restaurant to see what they've got going in their terrific restaurant.

The Back Door Lounge in Old Sacramento is rapidly filling up with office Christmas parties, so don't wait too long to give Gail a call.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING! To one and all – or as we say in my family, "Happy Gobble Gobble," and don't forget to watch the Thanksgiving Day parade as well as the football.

SPORTS INSIDER from p. 3

The only problem the Silver and Black faced Sunday was their special teams allowed the Chargers 269 yards in kick return yardage. The Raiders (NL) will travel to New York this Sunday to face the battered and bruised Giants, who at 5-5 will be recovering from their Monday night loss to Minnesota.

My NFL picks suffered again last week as the Niners didn't cover spread and the Bucs lost to the "Da Bears". I did finally win a Monday night game with the Vikings win over the Giants to post an 11 win, 17 losses and 2 ties for the season. This week I asked my dog for some help! Aztec says take the Titans (-1) at home over the Steelers and the Kansas City Chiefs after a bye week in a pick-em against Seattle. On Monday night take the Tampa Bay (+ 7 ½) and all the points you can get against the St. Louis Rams.

Enjoy your "Thanksgiving Holiday" and see ya next week!

Q. I watched a movie called "Legend" with Tom Cruise as the young hero. Who was the girl with him, and what else has she done? — Jessica R.

A. Tom Cruise's co-star in "Legend" was Mia Sara, who was 16 when she and Cruise shared screen time in the film version of the Ridley Scott classic. Mia Sara's long list of films include "Time Cop," "Ferris Bueller's Day Off" and "A Stranger Among Us." She also appeared in the miniseries "Queenie."

Mia Sara can next be seen co-starring with Matthew Modine, Vanessa Redgrave, Jon Voight, Richard Attenborough and Darryl Hannah in the CBS miniseries "Jim Henson's Jack and the Beanstalk," which airs Dec. 2 and Dec. 4.

Q. I just read your item on (the SciFi Network's) "FarScape." While you are right in saying that the star, Ben Browder, is American, you were incorrect in saying that the show is shot in New Zealand. It is actually filmed in Sydney, Australia, and while some of the cast members are from New Zealand, most are Australian. — I.A.

A. Thank you. I appreciate the correction. And for all FarScape fans, I'm happy to remind you that the show has been renewed for a fourth and fifth season. And that's a fact!

***

Q. I saw Jeremy Piven on a talk show yesterday talking about his new movie, "Serendipity." I loved his series, "Cupid," and was wondering if he'll be doing any more series. — Karin L.

Mia Sara

A. Piven has signed with the FX network to star in its upcoming series, "Bad News, Mr. Swanson." It's about a man who has been diagnosed with cancer. And, oh yes, it's a comedy.

***

Q. In the (HBO) miniseries "Band of Brothers," is Colin Hanks related to Tom Hanks, who is one of the show's producers? — Arlene S.

A. He is Tom's son by his first marriage.

HOLLYWOOD ... Renee Zellweger is set to co-star with Russell Crowe in "The Cinderella Man" for Miramax Pics. Based on the real-life story of boxer Jim Braddock, Zellweger will play his wife. At the moment in real life Miss Z is supposedly in residence with George Clooney and his potbellied pig. A word to Gorgeous George: Watch it, man! Mr. Crowe has made waves in several relationships — e.g. Meg Ryan and Dennis Quaid.

Nicole Kidman is more than ecstatic over co-starring with Sir Anthony Hopkins in "The Human Stain," based on Philip Roth's novel about a light-skinned black college professor who passes himself off as Jewish. He is then hounded as a racist when he casts slurring remarks about several students. Nicole thinks Hopkins is just about the greatest actor in films today ... Heath Ledger stars in "Our Sunshine," about an Australia outlaw, to film "Down Under" ... Nicolas Cage's next is "Constantine" about a fellow named John Constantine who deals in the occult to find evil forces ... Val Kilmer stars in "Killer" for Newline about a brilliant executive who thinks he has pulled off the perfect crime ... Leonardo DiCaprio will star as Alexander the Great of Macedonia in "Alexander" to be directed by Martin Scorsese ... Hollywood is really hanging in there trying to keep the cameras rolling during these difficult times.

BITS 'N' PIECES: Just when the word was that maybe it was serious between Dame Elizabeth and Jeff Goldblum, she was spotted dining out twice with George Hamilton. She and the tanned one have been good friends for years. Lately everyone has been wondering what happened between Gorgeous George and author Danielle Steel. Looked for a while there like a sure trip to the altar ... An aside to Wayne M. of Costa Mesa, Calif. I don't know anyone who can tell me about Larry Fortensky, but I'll try to find out somewhere. Hold on ... Leonardo DiC spotted dining alone at a tiny restaurant in the Larchmont Village area of L.A. He also showed up solo at a book signing and purchased a book on Howard Hughes ... Prince Edward, third son of Queen Elizabeth, is carving a name for himself as a producer of films and documentaries in Lalaland ... Whispers now, and they are only that, that even though the fair Gwyneth is tight with Luke Wilson, she might be seeing Ben Affleck again. He's all clean and sober now ... Bruce and Demi want their daughters to act, BUT the stipulation is that the youngsters may only appear in films with their mother or dad ... Alec Baldwin is in from the East Coast to star in a film about former President Lyndon Johnson. (Haven't heard any news yet about him getting back together with Kim.) ... It may be out by the time you read this, but as I write it's all pretty hush-hush about Hugh Grant and Sandra Bullock. I hear they've been seeing each other for some time ... "Copenhagen," starring Len Cariou, Mariette Hartley and Hank Stratton, runs for seven weeks on stage at the Wilshire Theater in Beverly Hills ... Aside to Bertha G. of Grand Rapids, Mich. Yup. Debra Winger is still acting. Come February you will be seeing her in "Big Bad Love" based on the short stories of Larry Brown (Vintage Books) ... Still "veddy" suave and "veddy" handsome with snow-white hair and mustache, Omar Sharif was honored at the first annual Marrakech Film Festival with a showing of several of his unforgettable films, among them "Doctor Zhivago," "Lawrence of Arabia" and "Funny Girl."

(NAPS)—A zesty tomato cocktail, Clamato can be used as an ingredient in a variety of dishes, from mixed drinks to chowders. Here are a few choice crowd-pleasers:

Clamato Empanadas
¾ lb. ground beef or pork
1 medium onion, chopped
1 package taco or fajita seasoning
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup Clamato
2 pie crusts

1. Sauté ground meat and onions on medium-high heat. When starting to brown, add seasoning packet and garlic, stir to combine. Add green pepper and Clamato and let simmer for 10 minutes. Let cool.
2. Take a pie crust and cut 12 three-inch rounds. Place spoonful of mixture on the center of a round. Fold in half and pinch closed, then flute edge with a fork. Repeat with remaining dough and mixture.

OPINION

Letters to the Editor

Against the casino

Shame on the Mayor and City Council members for even giving respectability to the foolishness of building a mega gaming casino in our city.

Shame on the citizens of West Sacramento who would allow their children to grow up under the evil influence of casino gambling in their backyard which would dominate our community for the rest of their lives.

Shame on Seniors (who would likely benefit in some material way) if they approve the influx of casino gambling out of nothing but their own self-interest. They should ask themselves, "Is this the legacy we want to pass on to our children and grandchildren?" Isn't their generation proud of all their sacrifices and accomplishments which helped build this country, and the way they fought for our freedom, that they would sell it all down the river?

Shame on the Indians who are a part of this evil-conceived scheme. If they want a casino to benefit their tribe, let them build it on their own tribal land. If anyone believes that the mega casino is being built to benefit poor Indians, that is the ultimate hogwash. I don't believe the Indians of the Upper Lake Pomo Tribe are the ones that really want this casino. I believe their name is being used as helpless pawns by the rich promoters who will stand to get even richer off this project, as they have off all the others where they have fooled the public across the country.

The Indian cultures as a whole are the very ones who consider their land sacred with a spirit of its own. It is very unlikely that they would want to pave over land and built something so contrary to nature and the Great Spirit that protects it. No one goes on to their tribal land and builds a shopping mall over it, forever taking away their independence and way of life. What gives them the right to come into our neighborhood and ruin the unhurried quality of life that still exists in West Sacramento?

I don't care what benefits would come from the influx of casino gambling in our city, how many jobs, how many extra policemen and firemen, schools, parks, or community centers. It will forever tear out the heart of the city that sells its soul to the devil for gold. What will come next in a few years? A porno palace with brothels if it benefits the city financially?

If the mega casino is built, there will be an everlasting monument -- to what? To wipe out the character of West Sacramento, to live in the shadow of Mafia-style society that runs Las Vegas? It will be a monument that forever says, "West Sacramento -- the city that couldn't make it on its own." It will be the city whose citizens sacrificed their independence and their childrens' future for dependency on outside money interests.

By the way, there once was a tower in an ancient land, built by its citizens, called the Tower of Babel (Genesis 11:1-9). I'm sure its dimensions may be surpassed by this monstrosity planned for our land. Think about it.

Some casino questions

We're reading more about the proposed Indian gam(bl)ing resort, advocates wanting to locate on the southwest corner of Harbor Blvd. and Reed Ave., where it would be most viewable from I-80, but is this the wisest use of such prime land in our small city? We must weigh the pros vs. the cons before deciding yea or nay at a later date yet to be determined.

Tentative plans make the main building look like the state capitol, which is flattering. But why are virtually all other such resorts located in the non-incorporated areas? Many legal questions must first be answered since the Indian folks have a unique set of rights and may not (within their gaming resorts) always be subject to local law unless they agree beforehand, prior to construction. Has there been a precedent-setting case to pave the way, so we need not experience delays in court if voters tentatively approve this?

Even if voters want the casino, other questions must be answered: (1) What would be the effect upon the balance of our water, sewer, power (gas and lights) and garbage capacities? (2) Police and fire departments? (3) Social services (would the added jobs more than offset costs of more folks being broke from gambling?) (4) Public transit: more shelters and more frequent service than once per hour? (5) Environment: more noise, air and other potential pollution? (6) Traffic flow and costs of related upgrading? Road widening and more signals? (7) Justify local court, jail and hospital? (8) Even more housing, including low-income housing?

If all of the above can be addressed, the gaming casino would get the green light. But if we do have adequate capacities now, would we not have to put on the brakes for other developments? (Would any capacities be used up?)

I prefer such a casino to be located rurally, since the more one sees it, the more tempted one is to participate.

Animals have rights

The U.S. Department of Agriculture deserves a deluxe fruit basket for taking long-overdue steps to improve the lives of animals killed for food, including hiring 17 veterinarians to oversee the treatment of animals in slaughterhouses.

Following the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals' (PETA) hard-hitting campaigns against McDonald's, Burger King, and Wendy's, the fast-food industry is now taking the lead to lesson the suffering of animals. The fast-food giants agreed to set better standards for the living and dying conditions of animals, including conducting slaughterhouse audits under the supervision of animal welfare experts. Extra kudos to Burger King for accusing the USDA of lax enforcement of the Humane Slaughter Act, which requires that livestock be rendered unconscious before they are bled and skinned.

Of course, the best way to ensure that animals aren't treated cruelly is to go vegetarian. Readers of this letter can call 1-888-veg-food or visit GoVeg.com for a free vegetarian starter kit, chock full of delicious recipes, cooking and shopping tips, and nutritional information.

West Sacramento resident Derek Backus, one of the leaders of a new citizens' group that has sprung up in opposition to a power plant also proposed for port land, said his group is also opposed to the concrete and asphalt facility.

"I used to do 'hot-mopping,'" he said, "so I know what asphalt smells like. As a petroleum product, it's absolutely the most noxious use you could put in there. There's a noise issue, there's an air quality issue. Cement plants are notorious for creating dust and particulate matter, and I don't really want to smell asphalt '24-7.'"

Sulpizio said that flyers – apparently those distributed by Backus's group – have resulted in several phone calls to his office from local residents concerned about the plant.

"I've had a couple of calls from people in Southport who either received flyers opposing the power plant, or heard about the concrete/asphalt plant and wanted more information," said Sulpizio. "I've had what I considered good conversations with people who said they wanted more information before they make up their minds."

The port commission is scheduled to discuss lease details with Pacific Cement behind closed doors on Monday, Dec. 3. If an agreement on the lease emerges from that talk, said Sulpizio, then the Pacific Cement proposal will be further discussed in the public portion of the commission's meeting which begins at 4 p.m.

The port commission meets at the California Trucking Association building, 3251 Beacon Blvd., first floor.

A call from the News-Ledger to Pacific Cement was not immediately returned.

Victim missing after apparent abduction

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Both a suspect and a victim are missing following an apparent kidnapping incident near Old River Road in West Sacramento's north area on Nov. 13 at around 11:30 p.m.

Sgt. Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department said the department is continuing to investigate the incident, which began with the report of a fight involving several people at Bryte Park. By the time officers arrived at the scene of the fight, the subjects were gone.

Several minutes later, officers were dispatched to a location next to Old River Rd. regarding another fight. Again, the combatants could not be found.

Shortly afterwards, a victim told police he had been with two acquaintances, meeting "some people regarding a personal matter" at the park, according to police. When the three men arrived at the park, they found seven to 10 people waiting for them – and a confrontation became physical. One of the three left immediately. Two others were assaulted and then forced to drive in separate cars to the Old River Rd. site.

One victim ran from the assailants on foot. While the suspects chased the fleeing victim, the second victim fled in a vehicle and later contacted police. The victim fleeing on foot was last seen running towards the Sacramento River.

That man, 22-year old Stepan Stetsura of West Sacramento, is still the subject of a search. He is described as 5' 9" tall, 200 lbs., with brown hair and blue eyes, and is employed as a pizza delivery driver in Sacramento.

On Wednesday, police arrested 21-year old Valeri Mysin of Sacramento in connection with the case. He was charged with felony assault and kidnapping, with bail set at $200,000. At his arraignment last week, bail for Mysin was removed.

Police later announced that they are looking for a second suspect, Vladaimir Samoylovich, 21, of West Sacramento. He is described as 6' 2" tall, 190 lbs., with black hair and blue eyes. Samoylovich is believed to have fled the area, possibly on his way to Washington State. He might be driving a Champagne-colored 1994 Honda Accord LX sedan, license number 4TXM042.

Bowler said police are continuing to try to identify other suspects involved.

He added that the story behind the confrontation is still "pretty cloudy," but that it appeared to be rooted in an attempt by victim Stetsura to become better acquainted with a local woman. She was not interested in his contacts.

"She contacted our suspect Mysin and told him what the problem was, and asked him if he could do something to have the victim quit contacting her," said Bowler. "So Mysin contacted the victim and they agreed to meet at Bryte Park. He was leery about the meeting, so he brought two of his friends."

Mysin, now in custody, has not been helpful in learning where Stetsura is now, said Bowler.

Stetsura lived with family locally and held a construction job in the mornings and a pizza delivery job at night. Because he hasn't contacted his family since disappearing, said Bowler, foul play is suspected.

"We don't know what happened to the victim," said Bowler. "We've checked the river a couple of times with the C.H.P. helicopter, the Sacramento Sheriff's helicopter, and the C.H.P. airplane, and we've been there on foot a couple of times, and we've had our own boat out there looking for him."

Anyone with information on the whereabouts of either Stetsura or Samoylovich is asked to contact Detective Tom Maggiano or Sgt. Tom Bowler, at 372-2461.

Watch city council meetings live or 'on demand' from your home computer

From Art Schroeder
City of West Sacramento

Meetings of the West Sacramento City Council can now be viewed on the Internet.

"Streaming video" technology allows Internet users to either watch the council meetings as they happen, or "on demand" any day afterwards. Making this new feature available on the city's Web site allows access to council meetings from anywhere in the world by way of an Internet connection.

To view council meetings, either live or on demand, visit the main page of the city's Web site (www.ci.west-sacramento.ca.us). Information links provide directions for viewing the meetings, downloading the necessary software and getting answers to frequently-asked questions. For PC or McIntosh users, Windows Media Player software is required. For computers with Windows 98, 2000 or ME, the city recommends downloading Microsoft Media Player 7.1, although version 6.4 is acceptable.

Previously, city council meetings could only be viewed in person at city hall, or by watching delayed playbacks at scheduled times on Charter cable TV.

Through the new technology, you can now watch the meetings live on your computer, or, once the meetings are archived the following day, you can review either the entire meeting or specific agenda items through the Internet. Archived meetings will remain accessible through the Web site for at least three months.

The West Sacramento City Council meets the first three Wednesdays of each month at 7 p.m. at 1350 Halyard Dr. Due to the upcoming holiday season, there will be no meetings Nov. 21 or Dec. 5 and 12. The city Web site's "calendar of events" section has specific meeting information.
